Make OpenAI affordable: Startup chiefs to Altman

Indian executives seek India-specific pricing for AI models

AASHISH ARYAN & SHIVANI SHINDE
New Delhi/Mumbai, 5 February

Make OpenAI models affordable for developers and introduce India-specific pricing. This was the message from top Indian startup founders to OpenAI chief executive Sam Altman on Wednesday. Altman gave a ringing endorsement to Artificial Intelligence (AI) momentum in India and billed it as an important market for new-age technology.

Altman, along with chief product officer Kevin Weil, and vice-president of engineering, Srinivas Narayanan, met a select group of AI-driven startup founders, venture capitalists, developers, and students in closed-door sessions in New Delhi on Wednesday.

Indian startup leaders such as Alok Bajpai, group chief executive officer of travel planning platform ixigo, Vijay Shekhar Sharma, CEO of Paytm, Kunal Bahl, co-founder of Snapdeal, Raghav Verma, co-founder of Chaayos, Gaurav Munjal, CEO of ed-tech platform Unacademy, and Aakrit Vaish, CEO of Haptik attended these meetings and closed-door sessions.

Peak XV managing director Rajan Anandan and filmmaker Shekhar Kapur also attended the meetings.

"Many suggested that there is a need for India-specific pricing. Google, Microsoft and others also have different pricing. It is important for OpenAI to think on these lines as the global pricing may not work in the Indian context," said a founder who attended the session.

These sessions were focused on understanding the Indian user perspective and preferences, the issues they were facing while using the various application programming interfaces (APIs) developed by OpenAI, and the pricing of these APIs, among others, people who attended these sessions said.

"Acknowledgment that pricing is high currently and for mass scale adoption, it would need to come down dramatically. Possibly more updates on that in the future," Kunal Behl, co-founder Sanpdeal posted on X.

They acknowledged that India is their second-largest market and recognised the need to enhance support for Indic languages. They demonstrated how every new model launched has improved in accuracy and showcased notable advancements in Indian languages like Hindi, Marathi, Bengali, Kannada, Telugu, Punjabi, Malayalam, and others.

"It was an engaging meeting where we had a candid discussion about how companies in India are leveraging OpenAI's technology and the challenges we face. They were also keen to understand our expectations from them and how their roadmap is shaping up. The team was highly forthcoming, openly sharing insights into their near-term plans," Alok Bajpai, Group CEO, ixigo told Business Standard.

The top leadership of OpenAI was also open to discussing the pricing of the APIs and how that can be made more accessible to Indian users, another startup founder said.

"We spoke about a lot of the people who are using these products from OpenAI and the kind of applications that are being made on top of their foundation model. It was a very engaging conversation with them," a third person who attended the meetings said.

"More than making it open source, we will have to see what the USP (unique selling point), the price point and compute (of the model) is. In India, it is no longer a question of whether you can build a model but it is a question of whether you can build that model for a billion people," Paytm's Vijay Shekhar Sharma said.

The leadership also talked about making the models open-sourced at some point in the future.

KARIM AGA KHAN 1936-2025

A friend of India, spiritual leader & billionaire

AGENCIES

New Delhi, 5 February

One of the greatest patrons of built heritage and the man behind the revival of decaying sites like Sundar Nursery and Humayun's Tomb, is how experts remembered Aga Khan IV, who died in Lisbon on Wednesday at the age of 88. Aga Khan IV, a spiritual leader of the Ismaili Shia Muslim community, was known for his development work around the world, including India.

He is survived by three sons and a daughter and several grandchildren.

He was given the title of "His Highness" by Queen Elizabeth in July 1957, two weeks after his grandfather the Aga Khan III unexpectedly made him heir to the family's 1,300-year dynasty as leader of the Ismaili Muslim sect.

Considered by his followers to be a direct descendant of the Prophet Muhammad and treated as a head of state, he was 20 years old when his grandfather named him as successor to lead the diaspora of Shia Ismaili

At 20, Prince Karim Aga Khan IV inherited reins of Ismaili Muslims and used his entrepreneurship to become one of world's richest hereditary rulers

Muslims, passing over his playboy father and saying his followers should be led by a young man "who has been brought up in the midst of the new age." Over decades, the Aga Khan evolved into a business magnate and a philanthropist, moving between the spiritual and the worldly with ease.

His interests, however, extended to preserving and revival of cultural heritage across countries, including India, through the Aga Khan Trust for Culture (AKTC) — a part of his main philanthropic organisation Aga Khan Development Network. Under the trust's patronage, India saw the restoration of the 16th-century Humayun Tomb, a UNESCO world heritage site in Delhi, and the conservation of Sundar Nursery and the Qutb Shahi monuments in Hyderabad.

The AKTC currently works in 30 countries and employs almost one lakh people and has an annual budget of about $1 billion for non-profit development activities.

The extent of the Aga Khan's financial empire is hard to measure. Some reports estimated his personal wealth to be in the billions.

The Ismailis — a sect originally centred in India but which expanded to large communities in east Africa, Central and South Asia and West Asia — consider it a duty to tithe up to 12.5 per cent of their income to him as steward.

"Deeply saddened by the passing of His Highness Prince Karim Aga Khan IV. His contributions in areas like health, education, rural development and women empowerment will continue to inspire several people" NARENDRA MODI, Prime Minister

FinMin directs officers to not use AI models

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 5 February

The finance ministry has directed its officers not to download or use AI tools and apps such as ChatGPT and DeepSeek in office computers and devices, saying they pose confidentiality risks to data and documents.

In a communication last month to all its departments, the ministry said AI tools/AI apps in office devices may be strictly avoided. "It has been determined that AI tools and AI apps (such as ChatGPT, DeepSeek etc.) in the office computers and devices pose risks for confidentiality of Govt, data and documents," Department of Expenditure said in a January 29 note.

The move comes at a time when countries like Australia and Italy have shielded their official systems from DeepSeek over privacy and data safety concerns.

Currently, Sam Altman, CEO of OpenAI, which has developed AI chatbot ChatGPT is on a whirlwind tour to India. He is meeting top government officials, industry captains and participated in a fireside chat on Wednesday. DeepSeek's latest AI offering has drawn global attention for its low-cost model — at just $6 million against global average of billions of dollars. Its R1 used a fraction of compute power as compared to established AI models like ChatGPT. DeepSeek overtook ChatGPT as the top-ranked free app on Apple's Appstore.
